MDOCS STORYTELLERS' INSTITUTE DIRECTOR

Skidmore College's John B. Moore Documentary Studies Collaborative (MDOCS) is an interdisciplinary program that offers training and resources that draw on the documentary arts for critical inquiry, discovery, civic engagement, and exposition in media and technologies.

MDOCS is accepting applications for a Director of the Storytellers' Institute, a 3 year renewable position open to a professional in documentary media (i.e. sound, video, photo, and/or multimedia). The Director is responsible for organizing the annual Storytellers' Institute; developing cutting-edge internal and public programming; recruiting and supporting Institute participants; extending the institute network nationally and internationally; and teaching 2 production courses each academic year (scheduling may be flexible).

The annual Storytellers' Institute is a five-week academic residency hosted at the Skidmore College campus in June. Each summer, the Institute welcomes 4 documentary practitioners as Fellows, and 10 Skidmore College faculty and students as Scholars to engage in lively and thought-provoking conversation, workshops and inspiration addressing a timely topic or theme. The residency provides space for participants to work independently and collaboratively in order to hone their craft and advance their current project.
